Global challenges can disrupt agricultural production and supply chains and threaten the food security of many. This special feature explores the role of Canadian farmers to help feed the world in times of uncertainty. How can innovation and support be leveraged to allow the farming community to growing food in a sustainable, cost-effective and environmentally sound way?

Proposed topic highlights:

CANADA'S FARMERS – Profiling leaders and advocates as well as initiatives designed to support farmers and their partners.

RESEARCH & INNOVATION – Translating the latest findings about farming and food systems into tangible results.

TECHNOLOGY – Leveraging data and technology to enhance farming practices.

IMPACT – How Canadian farming is helping to advance food security across the globe.
