With the help of technology and innovation, our homes can become integrated systems that potentially include computers, smartphones, doorbells, cameras, lights, windows and appliances – offering comfort, energy efficiency and peace of mind. This special feature will explore the evolution of home security and automation, and what it means for Canadians.

Proposed topic highlights:

Customized security options – From security cameras to remote monitoring and advanced warning systems.

Sustainability – Home automation for energy efficiency and green living.

Automation enabling independent living – Options for enhancing safety and security for seniors.

Improved user experience – Smart homes that are affordable and easy to use.
